Deregulated Administrative Fee (Effective May 8, 2017)

Non-regulated products are subject to a Deregulated Administrative Fee ("DAF"). The DAF is determined as a percentage of billing and is used to recover the costs carriers incur to maintain, provision, develop and advance the underlying infrastructure essential to providing internet and data-related products and services. The applicable percentage is subject to change from time to time and applies to products that are not subject to rate preapproval regulation.
